

From: David Tarsi
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 12/3/01 8:13pm
Subject: Microsoft anti-trust suit

What Microsoft is proposing is absolutely insane. They already have a Monopoly, what are we trying to do encourage more of that monopoly?
Right , encourage our young people to use the monopoly and train them in it. It is like letting the cat watch over the hamsters.

I can't believe that this is even being considered. What has happened to this country anyway? Why the hell are we letting corporatins run our lives for crying out loud?

Sure let microsoft give the schools computers , but if nothing else WITHOUT SYSTEMS ON THEM. Those computers should be loaded with Linux, or Unix so the students can learn what they will have to anyway.

The Open Source Way is the epitome of the American way. It encourages compitetion and allows freedom.

The Linux and Unix systems on the market today are far and above better than anything microsoft will ever come out with.

By the time the gradeschool students of today get out in the real world they will be behind horribly if they do not know

Linux or Unix.

Open your eyes, fools. Get somebody in there who knows computers and common sense.

Dave T.